CHAPTER I
THE year 1866 was signalised by a remarkable incident, a mysterious and puzzling phenomenon, which doubtless no one has yet forgotten. Not to mention rumours which agitated the maritime population and excited the public mind, even in the interior of continents, seafaring men were particularly excited. Merchants, common sailors, captains of vessels, skippers, both of Europe and America, naval officers of all countries, and the Governments of several States on the two continents, were deeply interested in the matter.
For some time past vessels had been met by "an enormous thing," a long object, spindle-shaped, occasionally phosphorescent, and infinitely larger

PROLOGUE
HE CAME FROM nowhere. No one had ever heard of him or seen him before. one knew who he was.
On the first day of tryouts for the hockey at Fordham Prep School in the Bronx, he zled the coaches with speed, agility, and k-handling wizardry that belied his age. whispered giddily to each other and ried for their cell phones to call friends wives. They knew they had just witnessed arrival of a future pro, and possibly a -in-a-generation talent. They needed to e the news with someone. They needed
